What's New?

We collaborated with Hualien Tzu Chi Hospital, Tri-Service General Hospital, and the National Taipei University of Technology to conduct three successful workshops on enhancing the manuscript writing skills of researchers and scholars.

The workshops featured distinguished academic Chia Ning Chang, M.D. Ph.D., who shared her expertise and insights on various topics related to academic writing, including manuscript preparation, publishing strategies, and tips for successful publication.

As academic thought leaders of the industry, we look forward to empowering researchers worldwide through our workshops, services, and other academic resources.

WHAT OUR CLIENTS HAVE TO SAY

"The manuscript was accepted after revision and I am very grateful for the advice of the editorial expert. Your review was very precise and detailed, thank you for helping me to present the full results of the treatment in the matching text. The customer service staffs were also very attentive and efficient; I hope to work together again in the future!"

"I asked for proofreading in colloquial style, but it wasn't done. Some of the content was changed. When I asked another company to do the same content, it was very good that the sentences were easy to understand. It was difficult to recalibrate by myself."

"I really appreciate your excellent editing! Thank you for helpful suggestions. I have reflected all of them in my article. I am very happy to read your insightful AI report that I'll surely use before submission. Also, thank you for reducing the number of words, now I don't have to worry about the word limit for submission."

"Seeing that I've re-corrected it, a lot of mistakes are still there and I'm also sad when I find that I need to fix it carefully again. I don't know how this happens."

EDITOR SPEAK

MB1334, United States

I have been editing for Enago's editing services for some time now. The folks at Enago are pleasant and easy to work with, and they provide me with all the information that I need to accomplish the tasks assigned. Most assignments are well within my field of expertise; however, if not, Enago will note this on the assignment sheet so that I can decide whether to accept or reject it if I am not comfortable with the subject matter. Enago also provides helpful feedback so that we can continue to produce high-quality manuscripts to our clients. Workload has been consistent and has actually increased with experience and performance, and payments for assignments have been consistently on time. As a freelancer, both of these points are very important!

Enago also provides online forms on its website to request time off so that information on any vacations or other scheduled leaves can be provided to them to enable them to redistribute its workload. I also appreciate that Enago will work with me when there are deadline conflicts so that we can continue to ensure excellent service without missing any client deadlines.

Enago is a great company with whom to partner and is proud to provide excellent service to its clients.
