ENAGO EXPRESS

Everything Enago

What's New?

We're thrilled to announce the successful completion of our recent workshops in the ASEAN region in collaboration with two leading universities. The event saw over 500 participants and helped them gain vital skills to succeed in academia.

These comprehensive sessions covered everything from crafting compelling research papers and navigating journal submission to mastering the art of securing research grants. We also delved into the exciting world of AI writing tools, exploring best practices and understanding both their benefits and limitations.

Enago is dedicated to empowering researchers all over the world. Stay tuned for upcoming events. Get in touch with us if you'd like to host a workshop tailored to the needs of your faculty and students!

EDITOR SPEAK

BH3278, Canada

Joining Enago's freelance pool of editors this year has been my most positive experience with an editing platform thus far. While platforms vary in processes, I find Enago's editing pool and tiered bands a win-win situation. I can accept/reject assignments as per my availability while the company maintains consistency with its client services.

Enago's communication channels are effective because there are dedicated teams for specific purposes. I particularly like the chat function on the main interface, where I can ask a project management team member a question in real time. The feedback from Enago on my editing services validates that I am well-suited for this profession and provides me with tools for growth and professional development, which I find valuable.

As an academic editor in Business/Economics, I thoroughly enjoy helping academics with ESL fine-tune their manuscripts prior to publication. Enago's platform streamlines this process, allowing me to focus on editing while being supported by their administrative teams.
